INTRODUCTION

TOBY MORRISON

Our daily activity tracker helps you monitor your activity load, nutrition, movement, sleep, and energy levels. Over 7-14 days track your daily routine to establish your baseline and identify what works best for you. This tool allows you to make informed adjustments for ongoing improvements in your daily life. We recommend logging consistently for 7-14 days to effectively gauge your progress.

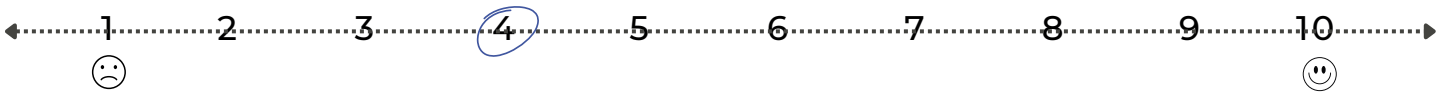

Use the energy scale to rate your morning and evening energy levels on a scale of 1 to 10. Record your meals and water intake, scoring each meal for satisfaction and how you feel afterward. Document your daily activities, including walks, chores, work, or school hours. Reflect on your day with notes on what worked well, what didn't, and areas to focus on tomorrow.

By staying mindful of your activities, energy levels, and well-being, you can make meaningful strides towards your health goals. On the next page you will find an example of how to fill it out. Get logging and start to make progress now!

REVIEW

Things that worked well?
More protein in my meals seem to give me more energy.

Things that didn't work well?
I found that doing work at home, and seeing a friend were all too tiring, and I think I am not up to doing so much in one day yet

My main focus for tomorrow is:
Do work in smaller chunks, so as not to make myself too tired. I also want to try and walk for an extra 5 minutes.
